

Fast Track is Back!

The U.S. Senate is now considering a special bill called Fast Track that will allow President Bush to rush trade agreements through Congress with no changes and minimal review.

If Congress passes Fast Track, we'll see:

- More U.S. job losses,
- More low paying jobs and
- Open season on workers' rights across the globe.

The Senate bill contains only minor changes to the version passed by the House of Representatives in December and does nothing to provide real worker or environmental protection.

Lawmakers are being heavily pressured right now by industry lobbyists who want to lower wages, health and environmental standards around the world.

These are the same lawmakers who failed to pass any legislation to protect millions of out of work Americans in the wake of the September 11 attacks - the same lawmakers who turned NAFTA loose and cost millions of jobs and job opportunities.
