

Had Enough Yet?

Corporate crime waves, vanishing retirement accounts, billionaire CEO's taking the fifth while factories close, markets crash and millions of Americans look for work.

It's enough to make you mad as hell – but is it enough to make you vote this fall?

Experts say, “No, working families don't really care.” They predict voter participation this year will be the lowest in decades - lower even than 1998, when turnout for the general election skidded to 35.3 percent of eligible voters.

Will you prove the experts wrong? Will you show them that you've had enough?

But first, you have to be registered to vote. It's a quick and easy four step process:

Step 1: Go to WWW.goiam.org.

Step 2: Click on 'Register to Vote'

Step 3: Print a copy of the 'National Voter Registration Form' and fill it out.

Step 4: Click 'State Voter Registration Info' for the correct mailing address for your state.

If you're already registered, then please seek out one family member, friend or fellow worker and get them registered. Let's double the number of Union voters at the polls.

We can do it. Let's get started right now.

Have you heard?

An Internet Bulletin for IAM Communicators

goiam.org

